"Well, Be Good!"

Probably the reason why men like this little phrase is because of the silly impression. When you meet someone on the street and talk to him a while and then leave him and say, "Well, be good!" you infer that he is a tiresome rogue and likely to kick over the traces at any moment.

Men like that. They like to have it thought that there's quite a bit of the gay dog in them. Say "Well, be good!" to any man and he will be pleased. On his way home he will probably look at a burlesque poster, with more than usual appreciation. At home his wife in uneasy over the bit of swag in his manner. He feels inclined to order her around a little or to start a row about something. He'd like to show her he still has a little red blood in him. But of course he doesn't do all this because the phrase is heard so often. Because the phrase is his assumption. He should be pleased that this is his wife's opinion. Husbands should do, for that matter, maintaining the reputation of a gay rascal is said to be a tiresome business.

A WONDERFUL NEW VOLUME

THE publishers of the Encyclopaedia Britannica announce that they have made arrangements for the issue, as soon after the end of the war as possible, of a new volume, containing a full and authoritative history of the war.

The new volume will be written by scholars and experts of the same high character as those who wrote for the Britannica itself, and by many of its own contributors. It will be absolutely impartial, excluding all partisan feeling and prejudice. It will contain

1. A judicial account of the real causes of the war, the progress of the struggle, and the results all over the world; with maps, as necessary, to show changes in boundaries.
2. The lives of the new leaders, whether civil, military or naval, in the belligerent countries.
3. The results of the war outside the sphere of fighting, the progress of surgery, the prevention of contagious disease, the new scientific discoveries, etc.

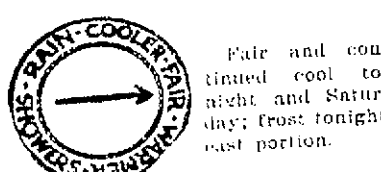

The new volume will bridge the gap between the days of peace before the war and after. It will be printed and bound to match the Britannica and the publishers guarantee that no matter how difficult and costly the supplementary volume may be from the editorial point of view, the price of it to all who purchase the Britannica during the present sale will not be more than that of a corresponding volume of the Britannica.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair and continued cool to night and Saturday; frost tonight and next morning.

THE WAGE PROBLEM.

Farmers are complaining that they can not obtain sufficient labor to plant their crops, care for their herds, etc. They say that when the time comes, men who might otherwise be working upon farms as laborers can earn more elsewhere a day, and work but eight hours a day, and find all the work they want. True, they have to pay for their own living, but they are through when the six o'clock whistle blows, and do not have to get up at sunrise to start work. They can work in factories and receive good wages and work a limited number of hours and this perhaps accounts for the scarcity of farm workers. There is too much activity in manufacturing circles, too much work for those who are willing to enter them to farm.

It would look as though a police dragnet must be put out for those who will "neither weave or spin and who toil not, yet live" to obtain sufficient farm help or have the farmers offer bigger inducements in the line of wages to secure the needed help. However, it may be possible to select a draft of those who are needed for actual military service for work on the second line of defense. In fact, the most important line of defense, the farm, will be called into play, and whether they will or not we may find the harvest field full of soldiers working also in France. Just before the war broke out in France, the war frontiers in the invaders, show that the officers have been instructed to detail men, with agricultural experience, to aid in rehabilitating these once fertile fields and with the cannons booming a few miles away, crops are being planted by the soldiers who have returned by the thousands as soon as possible. We do not have the danger to confront us, but still it might be well to have congress enact a law relative to the men who are not physically fit to join the colors to be conscripted for farm work so as to assure a capable corps of workers.

THE PROPER ACTION.

In the passage of the referendum giving the voters of the state of Wisconsin the right to decide whether they wish Wisconsin to enter the dry column or not at the April election in 1918, the state senate has acted wisely. It is a question that is up to the people to decide, not a few men whose opinions are weighed by this or that condition. It is not only state-wide in significance, but nation-wide in scope. The taxpayers should have the decision vote and the referendum, supported by all three of the Rock County representatives in the assembly and state senate, is what the citizens of the state demanded as their right. It is with much satisfaction that just at the time when national prohibition is talked of as a war measure, Wisconsin has fallen in line by permitting its citizens to decide this issue at the polls. State-wide prohibition actually prohibits local option seldom accomplishes the desired results. With state laws and federal laws, it is impossible to obtain liquor in clubs, blind pits, or otherwise, so if Wisconsin votes dry next spring it will actually mean prohibition and not a farce. The legislature has done well in placing the election at April instead of making it a campaign plank at the November date when state issues would have become clouded. Present indications would apparently tend to show that Wisconsin will enter the dry column when the votes are counted.

SELECTIVE DRAFT.

Through compromise, the joint committee of the House and Senate, congress has reached a decision on the selective draft system. It was about time some action was taken and the conferees were so trivial that the delay is inexcusable. The age decided upon is from twenty-one to thirty. This means the choice of the cream of the manhood of this nation. It means that the army to be raised is to be composed of young men who have reached maturity and understand the responsibility and gravity of the occasion that calls them into service. It is a wise decision. The turning down of the proposition to send Roosevelt to Europe at the head of an army of his own creating will perhaps lessen the enthusiasm, but still to have permitted it would have meant the creating of a political army and in this war politics have no place. The senate amendment relative to liquor zones and federal camps, and barring other objectionable features is a wise precaution, but still it places temptations in the paths of the men who will be selected that may lead to serious complications. However this is a war of ages, we are learning as we go, and the passage of this selective draft will be the first step towards a definite end.

STATE HIGHWAYS.

All credit should be given Senator Cunningham of Beloit, for the work he has done in giving to the state a systematic highway law that bids fair to revolutionize road building. When the Romans conquered a country they built highways that exist today, all leading towards Rome. The early days of this nation found the post roads, the stage coach and toll roads and the middle west was settled by them. For western settlers could not wait for the roads to be built and selected the Oregon, the California and the Santa Fe trails, for their migration. New York state built interior waterways as well as highways, and today their state is noted with courts and state roads that equal to which can not be found on this continent. Ohio and Indiana have followed suit and under the comprehensive law passed by the legislature, of which senator Cunningham was the sponsor, Wisconsin will be in line to re-entail the leaders. Janesville and Beloit and other Rock county cities are on the proposed route and when completed it will be a valuable adjunct to the entire community. All hail to Senator Cunningham and his earnest work in behalf of the citizens of the state.

The spirit that impelled the citizens of Janesville to purchase the tickets for the Company M dance, the generosity of J. M. Bostwick and Sons company in giving their liberal donation, have all counted. The management of the Beverly theatre in admitting soldiers in uniform free, the spirit that prompted Carl Brockhaus to offer to clean and press the uniforms of the men on duty, the offer of Hugh M. Joyce to be of service in caring for the feet of the enlisted men that needed attention, show the patriotism that is being displayed on every hand. It is in accord with the idea that every man can do his "bit" in this struggle and in making it easier for those who have enlisted they honor themselves.

While much of the proposed highway work in the city has been abandoned the main arteries to the city are to be cared for. This is a wise provision. The Gazette has always maintained that the ideal way to solve this improvement of streets proposition, now that the old ward have been done away with, would be to tax every property-owner in the city a proportionate sum for all improvements and not assess anything extra against the individual property owner, but pay it out of the general fund raised for highway construction. This may be Utopian, but still it is practical.

Wisconsin is receiving recognition down at Washington. Congressman Lenroot has displayed his Americanism in such a manner that his worth is appreciated and of all the Wisconsin delegation, though some have been there for years longer than he has months, he is chosen to go to the White House to consult with the president. No one mentioned La Follette's name, did they?

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

—ROY K. MOULTON—

THE REASON WHY.
She was a lovely thing to see,
She moved with most delightful motions,
Her clothes were charming as could be.

She wore the very newest notions;
And yet I really can't recall
The sort of hat she wore at all.

Perhaps her suit was brown or blue,
Or serge perhaps or yet of cotton,
She wore one (they so often do)
But more than that I have forgotten
I rather think she had?

About the pretty neck of her.

I seem to make a poor report.
I seem to be a poor reporter;
Perhaps my pen is short,
But oh, I know her skirts were shorter
Who ever sees the other clothes?
That go with brightly colored hose?

TODAY'S SNEER.
People who seldom grin are almost as hard to stand as people who always do.

Lessons.
So prone is mortal man to preach!
He waits his chance or turn,
For lessons he is glad to teach,
But seldom glad to learn.

It isn't as easy to tell when a woman has made up her mind as to tell when she's made up her face.

Nowadays.
"Sir, I'd like to visit your daughter," cried the youth, a blushing red.
And her father up and looked at him and very sternly said.

"Do you think you could support her?" she's been raised, you know, in clover.

"And just how much alimony?" when the honeymoon is over?

That Jones Boy.
"Jones says that boy of his is sure to make his mark."
"Well, if he makes any more of his marks on my front walk I'll put the dog on him!"

The Cow.
The docile cow she chews her cud,
I've often seen her do it;
I don't believe that I can say
I've seen her cud, but anyway
I wouldn't care to chew it!

Lots Older.
The New York Times recently printed the grand old joke about the little boy who was asked by his mother to run across and see "raw" Ben Brown's and who returned to say that Mrs. Brown said it was "none of his mother's business how old she is." And while it would be interesting to know how old Mrs. Brown it would be lots more interesting to know how old the joke is.

Confession.
Altho, of course it isn't right
To hear, with pleasure and delight,
A neighbor tell of rheumatiz
And other sorrows that are his
Or that his wife is shot in his
Or that his health is on the fritz;
It isn't right, it isn't kind
And yet quite frequently we find
It's not a nice thing to admit!
That we are pleased to hear of it.
When one relates a tale of rue,
Of ills and troubles. And are you?

And sometimes it is a good idea to see others as we see ourselves.

What is that Curious Affair
Oh, what is it?
Oh, it is a sport and rip and tear,
Yes, children, that strange dingus
Is a Revolving Door!

Why are the People not alarmed,
How do they dare to go,
At risk of being greatly harmed,
And to be placed in a hole?
Perhaps they think their lives are
Charmed;
We really do not know.

Perhaps He Does.
Perhaps he wonders how it feels,
When silent all the doll,
To bite a Nephew on the heels
Or merely yell and yell.

Perhaps he wishes to know how he
Could doze for several years,
By putting turnips in his tea
Or putty in his ears.

Perhaps he sought to know why
He sneezed if in distress
Or how he might spell pussycats
About a single S.

Or yet how he might always let
His tongue hang further out,
What a joy is like or yet
What this is all about!

PHILIP WHITEHEAD
URGES YALE MEN TO
ENLIST AS REGULARS

Janesville Man Writes Article for Yale News Making Plea for Enlistment in the Ranks.

Urging enlistment in the ranks, Philip B. Whitehead, son of John M. Whitehead of this city, and a member of the faculty of the Yale university, writes a most interesting article in a current issue of the Yale News, a college paper. Mr. Whitehead spent last summer on duty, the order of the day being to be of service in caring for the feet of the enlisted men that needed attention, show the patriotism that is being displayed on every hand. It is in accord with the idea that every man can do his "bit" in this struggle and in making it easier for those who have enlisted they honor themselves.

—ROY K. MOULTON—

THE REASON WHY.
She was a lovely thing to see,
She moved with most delightful motions,
Her clothes were charming as could be.

She wore the very newest notions;
And yet I really can't recall
The sort of hat she wore at all.

Perhaps her suit was brown or blue,
Or serge perhaps or yet of cotton,
She wore one (they so often do)
But more than that I have forgotten
I rather think she had?

About the pretty neck of her.

I seem to make a poor report.
I seem to be a poor reporter;
Perhaps my pen is short,
But oh, I know her skirts were shorter
Who ever sees the other clothes?
That go with brightly colored hose?

TODAY'S SNEER.
People who seldom grin are almost as hard to stand as people who always do.

Lessons.
So prone is mortal man to preach!
He waits his chance or turn,
For lessons he is glad to teach,
But seldom glad to learn.

It isn't as easy to tell when a woman has made up her mind as to tell when she's made up her face.

Nowadays.
"Sir, I'd like to visit your daughter," cried the youth, a blushing red.
And her father up and looked at him and very sternly said.

"Do you think you could support her?" she's been raised, you know, in clover.

"And just how much alimony?" when the honeymoon is over?

That Jones Boy.
"Jones says that boy of his is sure to make his mark."
"Well, if he makes any more of his marks on my front walk I'll put the dog on him!"

The Cow.
The docile cow she chews her cud,
I've often seen her do it;
I don't believe that I can say
I've seen her cud, but anyway
I wouldn't care to chew it!

Lots Older.
The New York Times recently printed the grand old joke about the little boy who was asked by his mother to run across and see "raw" Ben Brown's and who returned to say that Mrs. Brown said it was "none of his mother's business how old she is." And while it would be interesting to know how old Mrs. Brown it would be lots more interesting to know how old the joke is.

Confession.
Altho, of course it isn't right
To hear, with pleasure and delight,
A neighbor tell of rheumatiz
And other sorrows that are his
Or that his wife is shot in his
Or that his health is on the fritz;
It isn't right, it isn't kind
And yet quite frequently we find
It's not a nice thing to admit!
That we are pleased to hear of it.
When one relates a tale of rue,
Of ills and troubles. And are you?

And sometimes it is a good idea to see others as we see ourselves.

What is that Curious Affair
Oh, what is it?
Oh, it is a sport and rip and tear,
Yes, children, that strange dingus
Is a Revolving Door!

Why are the People not alarmed,
How do they dare to go,
At risk of being greatly harmed,
And to be placed in a hole?
Perhaps they think their lives are
Charmed;
We really do not know.

Perhaps He Does.
Perhaps he wonders how it feels,
When silent all the doll,
To bite a Nephew on the heels
Or merely yell and yell.

Perhaps he wishes to know how he
Could doze for several years,
By putting turnips in his tea
Or putty in his ears.

Perhaps he sought to know why
He sneezed if in distress
Or how he might spell pussycats
About a single S.

Or yet how he might always let
His tongue hang further out,
What a joy is like or yet
What this is all about!

WOULD LIMIT CARY'S
APPOINTEE POWER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 11.—Every foot of the ground for the control of the industrial and continuation schools of the state will be made by the appointment of the plan adopted by State Superintendent C. P. Cary is indicated by some of the movements in the legislature. When the regular session of the legislature opened, the superintendent's office came up for consideration in the house, Assemblyman Vincent of Kenosha county offered an amendment striking out the section of the bill giving the state superintendent power to appoint assistants in his office for industrial education. While the amendment was intended to strike directly into the field of controversy, an examination which has been made by members of the legislature indicates that the amendment is of little account. When the original bill was passed a number of years ago giving the state superintendent power to appoint assistants in industrial education, it was provided that the salary of such assistants should be fixed and approved by the state industrial board. Later a bill was passed which gave the state superintendent power to appoint assistants without limitation. The only effect of the Vincent amendment, according to some of the members of the legislature, is to take away power of approval of assistants' salaries in industrial education by the industrial board.

Probably one of the bitterest fights of the legislature will be over the proposed change in the background of this amendment. This idea is whether the state superintendent of public instruction shall have general supervision of the industrial and continuation schools of the state, or whether these schools shall be under the supervision of a separate industrial board of which the state superintendent shall be only an ex-officio member. The contest is apparently close. Assemblyman Vincent is leading the fight in the house for a separate industrial board, and apparently Senator Baldwin of the upper house is the champion of the idea that all the industrial schools shall be under the direction and supervision of the state superintendent of public instruction.

FIGHT WHITE PLAGUE
IN NEW FIELD ARMY

Cincinnati, O., May 11.—How to combat tuberculosis in the nation's new army was the problem placed before the opening session of the national convention of the Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis here today by its president, Dr. Edward R. Baldwin of Saranac Lake.

Dr. Baldwin, who attempted to solve the problem, but referred to "unknown difficulties that must be met and overcome."

At the request of the Council of National Defense, he said, the association has appointed a committee of three, who are co-operating in plans for dealing with the question of keeping the white plague out of the army.

Dr. Baldwin said that in the past three years and that plans are already under way to care for those who inevitably will come ill.

That latent tuberculosis conditions are made active in a large percentage of cases by pregnancy, was the theory advanced by Dr. J. H. Henshaw, president of the Ohio State Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon, O.

Every state in the union now has an organization actively fighting the white plague, he said. In the past several delegates to the convention today by Dr. Charles L. Hatfield, executive secretary of the organization.

Dr. Hatfield said that in the past several delegates have assisted in the organization, or reorganization, of state associations in ten different states. Organizations have also been formed in Porto Rico, the Philippine islands, the Canal Zone and Hawaii.

The war has given a new impetus to the work, said the field secretary. He told of the establishment of "The American Review of Tuberculosis," the first publication of its kind in English.

The mortality from tuberculosis is steadily declining, he said. Dr. Baldwin said constant improvement of sanitation, living and working conditions was having its effect. More emphasis is needed, he said, upon the importance of investigation of the individual than upon the danger of infection, which he said was to a certain extent uncontrollable.

IMAGINATION.

A wise imagination is one of the best aids for living, and in no way is it likely to be more useful than in anticipating regrets.

All regrets may be avoided if only we will think ahead far enough and clearly enough. "If I had only known!" we cry. But we might have known.

The Daily Novelette

THE EXITS.
—You never can tell. It isn't necessarily the man of many parts who goes to pieces.
—Prof. Simp.

(Synopsis of preceding chapters: Silas Sweggs suddenly discovers that although he draws a weekly salary of $110 as chief paying teller of a large paying teller company, and is very economical by nature, he never has enough money to meet current expenses. He denies himself tobacco, chewing gum, shoe blacking and Sunday papers, but still there is no abatement of the unaccountable weekly deficit. His wife begins to grow suspicious and finally accuses him of bestowing his money and affections elsewhere, and Sweggs is at his wits' end to solve the mystery. He keeps account of every cent spent, and still there is always thirty or forty dollars missing and not accounted for. He is in despair, disgrace and dismay. He has himself shadowed by detectives, fearful lest he is losing his mind and spending money unconsciously, but the detectives' reports tally exactly with his own notes. Meanwhile his household bills are accumulating frightfully and his eleven small children feel the pinch of hunger.)

Conclusion.
"I've got a good mind to end it all!" Sweggs muttered as he watched his wife's tear-stained face.

Moodily he thrust his hands into his pockets. A great light lit up his careworn features.

There was a yawning hole in each trousers pocket!

NECESSITY MOTHERED ERNIE'S LITTLE SCHEME

Toledo, O., May 11.—To Ernie Haines goes the palm. Awakened early by the crowing of a rooster, Ernie lay in bed watching and studying the brute.

"Ah," breathed Ernie, "I'll harness him!"

So Ernie stretched elastic bands from a belt over the rooster's head to a strap about its body. This makes it impossible for the doer to crow, thus allowing Ernie to sleep.

An Announcement To the Grocers

New Commission House to Open Tomorrow.—Offering Good Service, Seasonable Fruits and Vegetables.

Tomorrow morning the Southern Wisconsin Fruit & Produce Exchange will open its doors to the grocers of this vicinity for the first time, at No. 3 South Jackson street.

For the time being this concern will deal in fruits and vegetables wholesale. Their buyer is in Chicago today, and tomorrow there will be a complete stock of fruits and vegetables. Later on other goods will be handled wholesale.

The firm is made up of local producers, and this business will act as an outlet for their products. When local production gets to such a point that it cannot be handled in the local market, it will be shipped by this firm, and thus becomes a splendid thing for the grocers as well as the producers of Janesville and surrounding territory.

Mr. C. A. Sanborn, who is well known in this city, having conducted a grocery store here for years, will be the manager in charge and is well equipped through past experience to handle the business.

Let us store your furniture and stores. Talk to Lowell.

"EXPERIENCE" TRULY A WONDERFUL PLAY

Capacity Audience Enjoys and Appreciates Morality Play at Myers Theatre Last Evening Despite Long Waits Before the Curtain and During Intermissions.

A three-act play of over three-quarters of an hour before the curtain went up on the first scene and with intermissions of from fifteen to twenty minutes, the audience at the theatre until midnight. But even this unusual and unnecessary wait did not keep them from enjoying what may well be termed the most wonderful play in America.

In ten brilliant scenes "Experience" brings home the story that only the straight and narrow path leads to success.

The story of the play tells of the adventures of Youth—the average young man of today—and the temptations he meets when he goes out in the world to make the upward climb for fame and fortune. The various temptations that Youth meets are personified by beautiful women and they represent, such as Frivolity, Excess, Pleasure, Incontinence, Flattery, Love, Hope, Pleasure, Deceit and Sin.

"Experience" has the sparkle of youth, but it shows the cold, gray dawn of the morning after. It is a wonderful moral lesson.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

One of the most charming plays that has been developed in many weeks is now nearing completion with Enid Bennett in the star role. In this new play Enid will appear as the granddaughter of a veteran of the Civil War.

Miss Bennett has had the unique experience of stepping from the speaking stage of Australia and New York into immediate popularity on the screen that bears all the indications of being both genuine and permanent.

A series of films intended to be suitable for family consumption is being prepared by Thomas A. Edison. They are to be based on standard works of fiction. The heroes of many of the stories are boys, and therefore the pictures will be of especial interest to boys, but it is hoped they will also have an appeal for grown-ups. One of the early releases will be a screen version of Stevenson's "Kidnapped." Another will be "Black Beauty," which in its new form, will be known as "Your Obedient Servant." Among others of the early releases will be "Galegher," by Richard Harding Davis; "Billy and the Big Stick," and "The Boy Who Cried Wolf," also by Mr. Davis; "For the Honor of the School," "The Half Back," and "The Crimson Sweater," by Ralph Henry Barbour; "Jack Ballister's Fortune," and "The Ruby of Kishmoor," by Howard Pyle; "The Star Spangled Banner," by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews; and "Under the Great Bear," by Kirk Munro.

"QUO VADIS" AGAIN
Revolutions of former dramatic successes are a feature of every spring, and now comes the movie revival of the earliest and best of the large feature films. It will not only be completely remade, with new titles provided and new scenes added, "Quo Vadis" was eight times the average length of films when it was released, and its appearance was an event of great importance in the motion picture world. Some of its scenes, notable that of the persecution of the Christians in the Colosseum, have never been surpassed by the thrilling spectacles that have followed.

Enid Bennett.

A plebiscite of movie patrons and exhibitors was taken to determine which of Mary Garden's many roles she should first appear in before the camera. An overwhelming majority called for Thais, and the first film for which the prima donna will act will be a screen version of the Anatole France story which Massenet set to music.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

In Favor of Daylight Saving.

To the Editor:
It seems that there should be some discussion of this proposition of saving daylight, because it is very simple and wherever tried out it has proved very effective in the saving it has effected, not only of daylight but in artificial light, coal and general health, besides giving us an extra hour to be devoted to recreation.

All that is necessary to start this movement is to shove the clock ahead one hour, and the first night you lose one hour's sleep, but on other nights you sleep just as long as usual.

Some business firms in Janesville have tried it and are unanimously for it. It is not possible to arrange this matter for the entire city of Janesville for the next two and a half months. There is a national daylight saving bill before congress, but why should we in Janesville wait until it passes? Can't we pass a local ordinance to that effect?

MOTHERHOOD WOMAN'S JOY Suggestions to Childless Women.

Among the victims of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the ability to correct sterility in the case of many women. It is well established and explained by the following letter and hundreds of others we have published in these columns.

Popular Bluff, Mo. "I want other women to know what a blessing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. I had always wanted a baby in our home but I was in poor health and not able to do my work. My mother and husband both urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, my health improved and I am now the mother of a fine baby girl and do all my own house work. Mrs. ALMA B. TIMMONS, 216 Almond St., Popular Bluff, Mo.

In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential and helpful.

Web of Steel

Cyrus Townsend Brady, Jr. CIVIL ENGINEER

Copyright by Fleming H. Revell Company

"With your permission, sir," he said, "I am going to take Miss Hingworth out on the bridge. The moon is rising and—"

"I have heard so much about it," said the girl, standing by the door. "I want to see it when the workmen are all off and it is all quiet, in the moonlight."

"Very well. You had better change your dress, Helen, before you go," said the colonel, turning to Abbott and engaging him in conversation on technical matters.

"I'll wait for you at the front door of the car," said the engineer, his heart beating like a pneumatic riveter and sounding almost as loud in his ears.

"I won't be long," she whispered as she left him.

Helen did not want to waste time any more than Maude did. So, instead of taking her father's advice, all she did was to cover her beautiful shoulders with a light wrap and hasten to the car door in the shortest possible time. Every moment they were apart.

They Saw Her Round, Red, Full Face.

since the sum-total in which they could be together was so small, was a moment lost.

"Now," she said, coming out of the door of the car and descending the steps toward him, eagerly expectant, "I want a prize for my swiftness."

"A prize?" returned the man, "why, you've been gone years, and you haven't even changed your gown. You can't go out on a bridge in that gown and those slippers, tramping over dirty trucks, piles of steel, rough wooden planks, pain and—"

"Can't I?" she said, "you just see!"

"I hate to see you spoil your dress," he said uncertainly as she stopped.

Really what gown on earth was worth half an hour of her society? At least that is the way he felt about it, and evidently she felt the same way.

"It is settled, then," she said, slipping her arm through his as they walked down the long wooden platform near the siding. At the end of the platform, as they turned about the temporary station and storehouse, before them rose the bridge. The moon was rising over the high hills that sprang up from the steep hillside bank of the other side of the vast river. They saw her round, red, full face through an interlacing tracery of steel. The lower part of the bridge was still in deep shadow. Indeed, the moon had just cleared the hills of the opposite bank of the great gorge cut by the broad river flowing swiftly in its darkness far below. At the further end of the suspended arm extending far over the water the top of the traveler glinted. The cantilever on the opposite shore, incomplete and sunk under a high rise of sand, was still in shadow and not yet discernible.

Unawakened the woman drew a little near the man. He became more conscious than before of the light touch of her hand upon his arm. It was very still where they stood. The shacks of the workmen had been erected below the bridge about a quarter of a mile to the right along the banks of the little affluent of the main stream. They could hear faint but indistinguishable noises that yet indicated humanity coming from that direction. The fires in the machine house and in the engine were banked. Lazy curls of smoke rose to be blown away in the lightless areas of the upper air. In the darkness all the unsightly evidences of construction work were hidden.

"Oh," said the woman, drawing a long breath, "I don't wonder that you love it. Isn't it beautiful, flung up in the air that way? One would think it wasn't steel but silver and gold and—"

"Time was," said the man, "when I loved a thing like that above everything except my father, but now—"

In spite of herself the woman looked at him.

"But now?" she whispered as he hesitated, and then she turned her head half fearful of his answer.

"I am almost afraid to say it," he said, lowering his voice to match her own.

"A soldier of steel," she said, "and afraid!"

"Well, then, all that was the second time takes the third place."

"And before your father comes?"

"But she did not give him time to answer. "Come," she said, "let us go out on the bridge."

"It's a rough place for you. Those little slippers you wear—"

He looked down, and as it is in obedience to his glance she outthrust her foot from her gown. It was not the smallest foot that ever upbore a woman. Quite the contrary. Which is not saying it was too large, not at all. It was just right for her height and figure, and its shape and shoe left nothing to be desired.

"Never mind the slippers," she said; "they are stronger than they look. They'll serve."

"But the distance between here and the bridge is inches deep in dust."

"Dust!" she exclaimed in dismay. "I don't mind rough walking, but dust—"

"I never thought of that," admitted the man. "The fact is I have thought of nothing but you since I saw you, but now we'll have to go back or—"

"I shall not go back," she answered firmly.

He stepped down off the platform, and before she knew what he would be at, he lifted her straight up in his arms. He did not carry her like a baby, he held her erect, crushed against his breast, and before she had time to utter a protest, or even to say a word, he started through the dusty roadway toward the bridgehead.

It was a strange position. She knew the words would not come, but the words would not come. Whilst she was trying to think them up, they had crossed the little desert that intervened between the portal of the bridge and the end of the platform. Then he set her down gently.

"Thank you," she said simply, "that was very nice of you. You are wonderfully strong."

The moon, by this time, had passed the floor level and the cross-bracing cast a network of shadows over them, upon track and floor beams and stringers. The silence of the half-light, the mystery of it all oppressed them a little. It was with beating hearts that they pressed on.

man" was happy. So was Isabella. Minutes ticked away as they sat hand-in-hand, not caring for conversation, blissfully content to sit and sit in each other's proximity. But suddenly Isabella's young man grew restless. He began to twitch and pull fearfully at his face. His facial contortions got worse and worse, till at last Isabella got scared and cried:

"What is it, beloved? Tell your Isabella! Are you subject to fits?"

"No, no, of course not!" said the young man soothingly. "My eyes, glasses are falling off and I don't want to leave go of your lovely little hands!"

Captain Laveny was giving a dinner party and had arranged a nice little toast list in deference to the presence of Major Claquor, an able after-dinner speaker.

The latter was accompanied by his wife, a very dear old lady, who was much attached to him. As the gallant officer was to respond to the toast of "The Babes," his wife, knowing his fondness for children, judged that it would suit him admirably.

At the last moment, however, the major's subject, unknown to his lady, was changed to "The Ladies." But it made no difference to the officer, and his sparkling speech delighted the company. As the echo of clapping hands died down, the major's wife broke forth: "You don't know how fond the major is of them. I've seen him with two of them on his lap at once. Just teasing the life out of poor things. Every chance he gets he's sure to have them in his arms, or be romping with them; knowing his loving nature, they'll come to him when they want to go anybody else."

Suffragist Objects to Cuspidor

You would have nearly died laughing at old Judge Simpkins in his court the other day.

A delegation of suffragists called upon him—and as soon as he saw them he excused himself and went into his chambers, coming out all smiles, listened attentively to them.

I don't know what they wanted, but after he had heard their story and refused their appeal, one of those inquisitive maiden ladies noticed a cuspidor next the Judge's desk, and said: "Shouldn't expect anything but a negative answer from a man who chews tobacco."

The Judge was wild, and he said to her: "My dear lady, the fact that I chew tobacco doesn't affect my brain, and the fact that you may have eaten onions doesn't interest me, as your breath does not indicate it. And I want to say to you right now that a clean breath is as much a mark of refinement and good breeding as clean teeth and polished nails—my family and friends never find a bad odor on my breath, and I trust yours may be able to say the same. Good day!"—and with that he cut off a chew.

The facts of the matter are—when he went into his chambers he used some NO-TEL tablets which deodorized his breath, destroying the odor from any tobacco he may have chewed, cigar or cigarettes smoked or a possible drink.

The Judge knew that his breath was clean because NO-TEL is for the breath—that's why he buys six packages at a time, like many other successful men and women do.

It's only a precaution, but it is a wise one.

Dinner Stories

It was the night of nights. Isabella was sitting at the table. Isabella's father had said "yes," and Isabella's "young man" was happy. So was Isabella. Minutes ticked away as they sat hand-in-hand, not caring for conversation, blissfully content to sit and sit in each other's proximity. But suddenly Isabella's young man grew restless. He began to twitch and pull fearfully at his face. His facial contortions got worse and worse, till at last Isabella got scared and cried:

"What is it, beloved? Tell your Isabella! Are you subject to fits?"

"No, no, of course not!" said the young man soothingly. "My eyes, glasses are falling off and I don't want to leave go of your lovely little hands!"

Captain Laveny was giving a dinner party and had arranged a nice little toast list in deference to the presence of Major Claquor, an able after-dinner speaker.

The latter was accompanied by his wife, a very dear old lady, who was much attached to him. As the gallant officer was to respond to the toast of "The Babes," his wife, knowing his fondness for children, judged that it would suit him admirably.

At the last moment, however, the major's subject, unknown to his lady, was changed to "The Ladies." But it made no difference to the officer, and his sparkling speech delighted the company. As the echo of clapping hands died down, the major's wife broke forth: "You don't know how fond the major is of them. I've seen him with two of them on his lap at once. Just teasing the life out of poor things. Every chance he gets he's sure to have them in his arms, or be romping with them; knowing his loving nature, they'll come to him when they want to go anybody else."

Like Clock-Work!

(By N. B. Cook, M. D.)

The machinery of the body needs to be oiled, kept in good condition just as the automobile or bicycle. Why should the human neglect his own machinery more than that of his horse or his engine? Yet most people do neglect themselves. Their tongue has a dark brown color, skin sallow, breath bad, yet they fail to see that their machinery needs a little laxative at least once a week. A pleasant way to clear the tongue and the highly colored water noticed in the morning is to take a laxative which will cure the inactive liver and biliousness.

A pleasant vegetable pill is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloes, and jalap, made into a tiny pellet and coated with sugar. First put up by Dr. Pierce nearly 50 years ago. Druggists sell these vegetable pellets in trials for 25c. Ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The Dr. R. V. Pierce stamp is on them.

Second Quarter, Lesson VII. John XV. 1-13. May 13, 1917.

JESUS THE TRUE VINE.

Here is another example of how Jesus loved his disciples to the end. He was within an hour of his betrayal, but his thoughts were upon his followers, not upon himself. He knows how soon and cruelly his enemies will close in upon himself, but he uses the last hours to confirm his apostles. The parable of the vine is one means. The spiritual formation of a perpetual and close union, in spite of impending and violent separation. . . . There are some who believe that after the supper and before the agony in the garden, Jesus spent some hours of the night with his disciples in the temple. If so, the figure of the vine may have been suggested by the golden vine above the golden gate; or some vineyard on the road may have given the hint. It is not necessary, however, to imagine any immediate suggestion, as the vine was the national emblem, woven everywhere into prophecy, song and other literature of Israel. It was also one of the most familiar and beautiful of natural objects, the king of fruits in Palestine, source of wealth, joy, and strength to the people. In every respect it was worthy of the dignified and emblematic use Jesus made of it on this occasion.

Jesus opened his parable with a majestic ego, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches." It is as if he had said, "As you surround me now and hang upon me, so shall it be in much more than even now." But his language has a much wider sweep than that which would embrace the little company of his disciples then present. . . . In this figure of speech, Jesus asserts in the strongest possible manner his fundamental relation to humanity. He is sole Source of spiritual life and fruitfulness. Abiding in the stock (Jesus) and pruned by the husbandman (the Father), the branches (the disciples) live and bear fruit. (Verse 1.) Apart from the stock the branches wither. (Verses 5, 6.) The words of Jesus are the instrument by means of which the branch is pruned. His example and ideals of character and duty apprehended, admired, and realized make genuine disciples, whose lives honor and commend more and more to the Father. He whose desire is to maintain a vital union with Christ, and who to this end treasures his words in memory, is in the way of securing the things that are needful for his growth, comfort, and usefulness. (Verse 7.) The love of Christ for his disciples is analogous in greatness, fervency, and constancy to the love which the Father has for the Son. A measurement great beyond all finite comprehension. (Verse 10.) In conclusion Jesus defines his object in speaking these words to his disciples. It is that his joy may remain in them. As the fellowship of the Son with the Father gives him infinite delight, so the conscious union of the disciple with the Master is source of blissful content. Up to the measurement of

FELLOWSHIP WITH GOD. (Quiet Hour.)

May 13, 1917. Psalm CXIX 97-104

In Michael Angelo's palace in Florence your guide pushes a button and secret panel swings open. A cell in the wall is revealed. One lancet window lights it. Its only furniture is a stool and a deal sketching shelf against the wall. There the artist hid himself when he wished to be alone with his chisel and Moses, paint a Last Judgment and "swing the Pantheon in the air." Hours of secret wrestling in that small space have enriched the world for all time. If a man will do that for art's sake shall we not do that for Religion's sake? Jesus says "Enter thy closet" (Verse 8). Well may George Herbert's quaint advice be heeded in days like these. "Choose sometimes to be alone. Shut thyself! See what thy soul doth and down what thou findest there for 'tis thine own!'"

NEWS FROM SUPERIOR.

Superior, Wis.—"One bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription put me on my feet after being bedfast for a whole year, and the second bottle completely cured me. I had had operation for tumor and my strength would not come back. The doctors seemed powerless to help me. I heard of a lady who had been in as bad a condition as mine and Dr. Pierce's medicine cured her, so I tried it, with the very best of results, and I have been in the best of health ever since. I cannot say enough in praise of 'Favorite Prescription' for women."—Mrs. L. R. Carman, 1721 Twenty-second Street.

the disciple's capacity. It can fill him with joy. (Verse 11.) . . . It would be difficult to conceive of figurative language used more skillfully or powerfully. The allegory is extended in every possible way, the analogy being drawn out to its practical point. The substance of it is the assertion of the spiritual oneness of Jesus and his followers, and his relation to them as Source of spiritual life and fruitfulness.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

At the very moment of impending separation, Jesus speaks to his disciples of a union which they might maintain with him as intimate and persistent as that which maintains between branch and vine. It is another way of saying to them, "Let not your heart be troubled."

Men are joined to Christ, not as branches which shoot from the vine, but as those which are grafted into it, as to make a vital union. Mere mechanical union is insufficient. In nature good scions are grafted into poorer stocks. In grace the poor, sinful scions are grafted into Christ, the true and good stock. . . . No one must be content with being merely grafted into Christ. There must be the ambition for abundant fruitfulness. Failure at this point insures ultimate separation from Christ. . . . Jesus' word is the pruning knife. "Now ye are pruned through the Word which I have spoken unto you." . . . The figure from nature indicates the naturalness of the believer's relation to Jesus. Here is nothing arbitrary or fictitious. He who chooses to be a disciple, treasures the Master's teachings in his heart, actualizes them in his life, and keeps himself open to the indwelling life, such an one will have a wholesome and fruitful life. . . . Jesus spoke of his joy an hour before his agony. That joy was full and unimpaired, even by the shame and suffering of the cross. . . . The substance of this figurative and hortatory sermon is the necessity of vital union with Jesus at the point insured by results of that union. . . . Not all the objects from Herod's temple carried to Rome to grace Titus' triumph were graven on his arch along with the golden candle stick. The golden vine may have been among them. It makes little difference, however, for that for which the student had been already transferred to the Christian community. . . . Jesus and his disciples supplant the Hebrew ecclesiasticism. It was no longer the true vine which the Hebrew Father had planted. It is as if Jesus had stripped the golden vine from the temple and placed it in his church.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, May 11.—On Wednesday the junior class of the high school gave a banquet for the senior class at the high school gym. About 200 were present and a most enjoyable evening was spent. The room was tastefully decorated with flowers and the color scheme was green and white with pink and white tea roses. A seven-course dinner was served and between the courses dancing was in vogue. The party was the most elaborate ever given at the high school. Mrs. Park was a Janesville visitor on Thursday.

Attorney Ladd transacted legal business at Janesville yesterday. William Stricker was a Milwaukee business caller Thursday. Robert McIntosh departed for Ft. Sheridan last evening where he will take examinations for an officer in the United States Army.

Among those from out of the city who were in attendance at the funeral of the late Mrs. J. Burns were Mrs. J. Joyce of Amarillo, Texas, John Joyce of Janesville, Rose Condon of Madison, and Della Burns of Milwaukee.

O. R. Pomeroy of Gays Mills was a business caller in the city yesterday stopping at the home of his brother W. T. Pomeroy.

Fred McKinney and son Lester of Clinton were callers in the city last evening.

N. A. Nelson spent a portion of the week with his family in the city. He has about completed his work at Peoria, Ill., and goes to Madison, Wis., where he will start another contract for his firm.

Mrs. Rummelhoff of Chicago is visiting at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hauge.

The third range team of the Edgerton Lodge Knights of Pythias was in Stoughton yesterday to take part in the contest for 3rd. rank teams.

Teams representing Stoughton, Edgerton, Janesville, Beloit, Evansville and Brodhead took part. The decision of the judges will be announced some time within the next ten days.

Edgerton won the cup in 1915 and 1916 and if they succeed in winning the cup this year it will become the permanent property of the Edgerton Lodge. The team went through the work in a very efficient manner and feel confident they will be returned the winner. All the Knights of Pythias paraded in the evening carrying American flags. They were led by the Stoughton K. P. band.

Mrs. John A. Dickerson and sister, Miss Ina Traver, were called to Janesville today by the death of their brother, Hugh Flaherty.

A goodly number of Edgerton theatergoers were in Janesville last evening to take in the performance of "The Nipper" opera house.

Schooling For West Front Trenches. Here's What U. S. Boys Will Undergo In England If Nation Sends Army To Battle With Allies

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
NOTE.—The Canadian camps at Vimy and Bramshot, the largest in England, are the scenes of intensive training such as will probably be adopted in American camps. The first time by an American newspaper correspondent, who describes in a series of three articles the methods of training which American soldiers may expect.

By F. W. Getty.
(Special Staff Correspondent.)
Wimpy, England, May 11.—Canada's part in the great war is not nearly played. Fifty thousand brothers of the Canadians, who saved the day at Ypres, are here today, getting ready to carry on the share of the burden of the war.

Spread out over the rolling hills of Surrey are the two greatest Canadian camps in all England. Here, in what was once a wilderness of pine and spruce and ivy, Canadian officers are drilling Canadian men to take their places in the big offensive, already under way on the west front. Vimy, the heart of the camps, and Bramshot, where the raw recruits fresh from Saskatchewan or Nova Scotia are drilled are exclusively Canadian organizations. The few units of Americans have moved off to the front. Imperial officers are here only on visits.

The result is that the spirit of Canada and the new-found efficiency which the commanders declare is making overseas forces the finest trained in the world permeate the camp. Men are fighting for England, but when they speak of "home" they mean Canada.

Canadian officers in charge of these camps have begun to make the men prepared for the men from overseas for actual warfare in France. Conditions, paralleling as closely as possible those at the front, either exist or are manufactured at Vimy.

The pines of Giber Mountain, overlooking the picturesque "Devil's Punchbowl," see just as strange sights these days as when hazy men kicked in the wind in Cromwell's day. Topping a ridge that winds for miles through the thickly wooded or green-meadowed country, the trench, with the yellow clay soil thrown up on either side, standing out vividly against the landscape, zig-zags its way. Paralleling the trench and separated from it by a few hundred feet of waving grass and here and there clusters of barbed wire is another—the "Boche's."

For a moment everything is quiet, save for the occasional harsh cawing of a flock of crows. Then the silence is broken by a crash of musketry and the rattle of the deadly machine guns—a war of attrition. The trench, with the yellow clay soil thrown up on either side, standing out vividly against the landscape, zig-zags its way. Paralleling the trench and separated from it by a few hundred feet of waving grass and here and there clusters of barbed wire is another—the "Boche's."

There is no child's play about the battle. Bitter hand to hand encounters with spring bayonets, harmless but painful, are fought in the communicating trenches. The "wounded" are carried back to the "British line" on stretchers, while the raiders work like madmen, blocking the communications trenches and getting their Lewis guns into position.

This is a new phase in the training of these sham warfare under typical conditions. And Canadians back from the front declare that already it is showing good results. Another thing the Canadians in the Surrey camps are trying for the first time is a new system of bayonet fighting in the trenches. The old—and the French—system was to feint with the bayonet, draw the Hun on his guard and then lunge overhand at his chest. Today the Canadians lunge straight, from the hip, dropping the point of the rifle and bringing up the point of the bayonet sharply if they miss.

"Go right out after him" is the new command. A Tommy learning this phase of the fighting, and it appeals to the Canadians more than any other form of battle. "Go right out after him" is a sort of watchword around the camp. Winney anyway—it is symbolic of the Canadian spirit.

These Canadians today are different from the first overseas contingents. And those that came with the first call have changed too. In 1914 and 1915 the complaint among the British officers was that while the Canadians fought like the devil they were not well-disciplined and were apt to run wild. Today the same old dash and fearlessness is there, but the Canadians are doing something even more useful for the Allied cause. They are making records daily as the best-disciplined, best-trained units of the British army.

Canada and Britain and the Allies can thank Bramshot and Vimy for this new-found efficiency which has added to the most fearless fighters they possessed the quality of discipline. A new system of intensive training, recently instituted, is making the Canadians the equal of any troops in the world.

There's a secret about this system—they got it from the Boche.

NOTE.—(Tomorrow's story of the Canadian camps will describe this new system of intensive training.)

Catherine Hilschke, aged twenty-one, daughter and only known living son in his room above his shop at 8 who ended his life by gas asphyxiation in his room above his shop at 8 South Jackson street, Wednesday afternoon, cannot be located. Chicago detectives searched all day yesterday and Wednesday night. Chief of Police P. D. Champion received word today from Chicago that the girl was still missing.

The last letter she wrote to her father was from a place on South Ashland avenue, in the stock yards district. She was not there and according to a telegram received from the Chicago police, she had moved from that address about a week ago. Where she went it was not known.

Today another telegram told of a thorough search of the neighborhood and the failure to find her. Chief of Police Champion has requested that the search be continued.

BUMPER STRAWBERRY CROP FOR BAYFIELD

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Ashland, Wis., May 11.—Bayfield, noted for its strawberries, will have a bumper crop of that fruit this season, according to A. C. Boutin, Bayfield Fruit Growers' Association manager. "There is every indication that the berry crop will be greater than in previous years," Boutin said. "The heavy snow of the past winter kept the plants in good condition. They are growing rapidly. They will go mostly to the Twin Cities."

Humans Society Officer: Zachariah Clayton of Milwaukee, state superintendent of the Wisconsin Humans society, will in Janesville today in regard to complaints brought to his attention by Mrs. John W. Peters, as president of the Rock County Humans society.

Alkali in Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use. One or two teaspoonsful will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly; and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get mulsified coconut oil at any place it's very cheap, and a few cents will supply every member of the family for months.

Janesville baseball fans are hoping for a continuation of the good weather of today and yesterday and praying for Old Sol to blaze forth bright and warm on the Sabbath. If he does they promise to form a big delegation to host for their Central States League team in its second game of the schedule against Jefferson at that place.

Jefferson posters, arriving here last night, announced that Owens was the battery to oppose the local crew. Manager Cole has Crodan and George Puck on the firing line and Sharkey in the outfield. Owens is expected to play in the second game of the schedule against Jefferson at that place.

Sport Snap Shots

—MORRIS MILLER

Over a hundred followers of the game from here went to Fort Atkinson last week and it appears from talk on the street and about town that the number will make the trip to Jefferson. Those who witnessed the game against the Bobels brought back a stirring report of a strong and promising team and a hard game. Crodan is being noticeably anxious to see the what President Bill Lundgren and Manager Willis Cole have to represent Janesville.

President "Bill" says the team's game to start at nine o'clock Sunday morning and no joke about it. The reason all lies in a box of delays and the players which occurred Sunday and which had back a group of five players until a few minutes previous to the start of the game. It seems that every carload of players had trouble the time they shifted a rubber. It ran a couple of miles on the rim and then broke something else, but a farmer had come along with a "fill" and seven piled on top of one another and finally got there eight minutes before the start.

In addition to Crodan and Puck, President Lundgren today announced that "Chambers" would also be on duty. Klusborg, the Lake Shore major shortstop from Sheboygan, will join the team Sunday and Thompson, another Lake Shore man, will play in his position last week and showed himself one of the classiest players on the team, must travel some to hold his berth. Both are first class players.

"Buddy" Joe Ryan has been shifted from third to center field by Manager Cole and the factor, who had this game Sunday, is thinking of covering the sack. Another third baseman is Weber, who is undecided whether to play Weber at third or keep him in right field. As it is, all three men, Cole, Ryan and Weber tends to prove that Pat Moran evidently knew what he was doing when he secured Jimmy Lavender from the Cubs, as in grabbing Jimmy he has added to his staff of hurlers one pitcher who appears to have the go of the one team all National League clubs will have to beat to edge into the world's series—the Giants.

It was Jimmy's feat in breaking the winning streak of Marquard after the Cubs had grabbed nineteen consecutive triumphs that gained Lavender the attention of the baseball world his first season in the National League. This happened back in 1912 and ever since that time it appears that all Jimmy has to do to beat the middle of the diamond, Jayu McGraw's ball clubs have had a lot to do with keeping Jimmy in the National League, just as the Red Sox and Detroit kept Harry Krause in the American League.

Cap William Neal is acting as business manager and traveling secretary of the Pittsburgh club temporarily. Report had it that Billy Murray would take the job after Peter Kelly was let out. Neal, it seems, had nothing to do in a scout line until the season gets under way, and being capable, he was put on the job.

In spite of the fact that Benny Kauff of the Giants failed to bat in the 200 class last year, John McGraw firmly believes that the former Federal league star will show a big improvement this season. McGraw about inside baseball when he reported at Marlin a year ago. Kauff was misrepresented, however, when he talked about himself with the rule that he was unmercifully panned whenever he failed to knock the ball out of the lot.

Hal Chase is not attracting very much attention just at present, but he is on the job just the same. Prince Hal is hitting around .300 in his first full season of continuous service in the National League. Jimmy has lost just two verdicts to New York ball clubs. The statement had been made that he had lost only one game to the Giants across this span of service, but one game in which Jimmy was relieved in the middle of the game but was responsible for the defeat had been overlooked. During this period of service Jimmy has won fifteen games from the Giants and tied one.

Trains of Thought.

What we need for most of our trains of thought is more freight and fewer parlor cars. The average train of thought isn't big enough to carry a full sized opinion on any subject.

Most of them are forever going and never getting anywhere. What they need is a new schedule and a fresh timetable.

The greatest trouble, is, though, that some men are too narrow-minded to accommodate broad-gauge tracks for their trains of thought. Their equipment could run on a goat's eye-brow and never fall off.

Take a look at your train of thought some time. See if it is suffering from any of these defects. If it is, flag it at once and see what can be done.

COMPARISONS ODIOUS
YOU BET, IN BASEBALL

Picking the leading baseball player in a named position is a man sized task. To draw a comparison between certain players is overstepping the bounds of sane criticism at times. To say that Babe Ruth, or Walter Johnson, or Grover Alexander is the best pitcher in the game might be true, but it would be sure to start an argument over the merits of his rivals.

For instance it can hardly be said that Arthur Fletcher or Roger Hornsby is the best shortstop in the National League, merely because it is true that they lead as hitters. Neither can it be said that Maranville or Ben Croft or Wortman is the best because he is a flashy, fast and accurate fielder. Each man's worth has to be considered.

From a strictly defensive standpoint it probably is permissible to announce Maranville as the premier, with Baneroff and Wortman running close behind. Everett Scott of the Red Sox doesn't rank with Hornsby and Fletcher as a hitter, but he is a better fielder than either. However, that does not entitle him to be called the best shortstop in the game.

Comparisons of the same sort may be drawn from almost every position. Ty Cobb, of course, stands alone as an offensive playing outfielder. As a fielder he is not a Tris Speaker.

One might pick out Babe Ruth as the best southpaw, but that hardly pronounces him the best pitcher. The season's work names the most effective man at one point of the game and only for a season. Pick the best man at any position is carrying it a little too far, now that Hans Wagner, Napoleon Lajole and others of that class have stepped out of the way.

AMERICAN CROOK
HANGED IN CANADA

Sandwich, Ont., May 11.—James Hogue, alias Steward, notorious American crook, today paid with his life for the murder of W. Marshall Jackson, Canadian deportation officer, of Winnipeg. He died on the scaffold in the Sandwich jail yard.

Hogue shot down Jackson in the smoking compartment of a Canadian Pacific passenger train near Winsor, last January. He was in Jackson's custody, being brought to the border to be turned over to Michigan authorities to answer a charge of sale blowing in Battle Creek, Mich. Jackson was killed with his own revolver, which Hogue had extracted from the officer's pocket. Following the shooting the prisoner jumped from the speeding train and escaped. Four days later, weak from cold and hunger, he made his way to a Winsor hotel where he was captured.

Wheels of Canadian justice turned speedily. The prisoner was brought into court, tried, convicted and sentenced to die in a single day.

Today's execution was the first in Essex county in seventeen years.

Those people who have some land or can secure land to make into garden but who are not supplied with seeds can have their requirements filled by applying to Peter V. Charles President Ebbets is seriously considering cutting down his team to eighteen players. He has already farmed Ralph Durnine, a young left-hander, to Montreal. Wilhezer Dell and Ivy Olsen may be let out next.

It's toasted

THE slice of toast that is made on your modern gas range is pretty good. But do you remember when they made it over the coals of the kitchen stove, with a long toasting fork? Browned just right, crisp, and buttered hot. Those were the days.

We've gone right back to this fine, simple old idea to make Lucky Strike, the real Burley cigarette. Yes, sir! The tobacco—it's toasted.

We made this discovery after five years of experiment. Before this you couldn't have a ready-made Burley cigarette; flavor wouldn't hold. And you certainly wanted it; look at the sixty million pounds of Burley you poured out of those green, red and blue tin boxes last year. "Blame good tobacco!"

So now go to it; Lucky Strike Cigarettes; delicious, toasted Burley. It's a new flavor—you'll enjoy the idea of the buttered toast.

RAILROADS ASK FOR RIGHT TO INCREASE INTRA-STATE RATES

Madison, Wis., May 11.—An application for an increase in the freight rates of the state, filed by all the railroads operating in the state, has been made to the Wisconsin railroad commission.

This fact became known in legislative circles last night. Commissioner Carl D. Jackson of Oshkosh refused to confirm or deny that the applications had been filed. In an interview last night, he said that he would make the matter public on Saturday. This is taken as a complete confirmation of the matter.

From other sources it is learned that not all of the applications of the different roads are on file, but will be on file before Saturday morning. The information around the legislature is that the effect of an increase approximating 15 per cent is asked for in the petitions.

Early this year the railroad commission, following almost a year of consideration, ordered a readjustment of the freight rates in Wisconsin, a decision which resulted in material reductions. This decision was made of the so-called "Tittmore" complaints. J. E. Tittmore, of Oshkosh, represented the Fox river valley and other sections of the state in this litigation. Tittmore has a complaint for freight rate reductions before the interstate commerce commission. It has been generally expected that when the decision came in the interstate case that further reductions would result in the Wisconsin schedules.

When the original Tittmore cases were filed the railroads countered with an application for freight rate boosts, but the railroad applications were never pressed. The filing of the increases within a few months of the readjustments ordered by the commission came as a complete surprise to the members of the legislature. Since the freight rate reduction was ordered, Commissioner Walter Alexander has resigned. A yet in the pointment has been made to fill the vacancy.

MILWAUKEEANS URGE FOR NEW TRAFFIC RULES IN DOWN TOWN SECTIONS

Milwaukee, May 11.—Milwaukeeans are urging new traffic rules whereby traffic in down town sections will be run but one way on various streets. Working out the system would be difficult but is seen as a needed improvement.

Many merchants are objecting, declaring that such a rule would cause a slump in trading. This argument has been counteracted by statements from other cities where the one way system is in use. It is declared business is in no way affected.

The state industrial commission is interested in the movement and it is probable the proposition will be spread to other cities of size in the Badger state.

CHANGES MONETARY VALUE OF A JAIL SENTENCE

Winona, Minn., May 11.—The monetary value of a jail sentence has increased, according to Municipal Judge Fitzpatrick, who yesterday changed the alternate of a 36 sentence to two days in jail in cases brought before him. Heretofore it has always been three days. Increase in laboring men's wages was responsible for the change, the judge says.

EXPECT GOVERNOR TO SIGN DRY BILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 11.—The Evie referendum bill is now up to the governor. It will probably reach him next Monday and he will have several days to consider it. That there is no possibility of a reconsideration of the bill in the senate is indicated by the fact that the upper house suspended the rules and immediately messaged the bill back to the assembly where it was received this morning and sent to the enrolling committee. As soon as it is properly enrolled, it will be sent to the governor.

Just what action the governor will take in the matter is not known. He has issued no official statement. The opinion prevails that he will sign the bill. He has not been in entire accord with all of its provisions. Around legislative corridors there is talk that an amendment may be asked for. There are some who suggest that the governor will ask for an amendment to the referendum bill, just as he did to the Stemmer bill two years ago. The fact that such an amendment might be offered was hinted in the debate yesterday by Senator J. Henry Bennett of Vilas. Just what such an amendment might be is uncertain. There are many who are of the opinion that the referendum bill should be limited to the sale of hard liquor. The friends of the measure are inclined to think that the governor should pass upon the bill as it is and that no further amendments should be suggested.

Only one change has been made in the bill since it was introduced in the house. The original bill provided that the question be submitted at the election of the lower house Assemblyman Evie offered an amendment, which was incorporated, changing the date of holding the election, to April 1918. The Evie bill has had a stormy career. It was introduced in the house on January 24. The assembly committee on excise and fees recommended it for indefinite postponement by a vote of 3 to 2. Final passage of the bill was given in the house on March 29. The bill was received in the senate on April 6, and final action was taken on it on May 10, over one month later.

Not So Wrong.

A Russian applicant for naturalization papers was asked, "What is the constitution of the United States?" "Rugged and healthy," he answered. Of course there is a laugh, but still in said something.—Washington Herald.

CONTEST IN SENATE OVER WHITTET BILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 11.—The next big fight in the senate will be over the Whittet bill to change the personnel of the state board of education. The bill was the subject of a hearing before the senate sitting as a committee of the whole on Wednesday evening and has been made in a special order for consideration in the senate on Wednesday, May 16, at ten o'clock. The vote on the bill will be close. Party lines will be split. While the administration is back of the bill, there are some administration leaders who are opposed to the measure, and there are some opponents of the administration who favor the bill.

The Whittet bill increases the membership of the state board of education, but provides that the powers of the board shall be limited to making the budget and passing upon capital appropriation recommendations to the legislature. At the present time the board has assumed general financial control over the appropriations of the legislature made to the different educational institutions. This is perhaps the main limitation feature of the Whittet bill. Three members of the state board of education are apparently opposed to the Whittet bill, and in answer to certain questions filed a report with the senate committee on education. The minority report, signed by Governor Philipp and Dr. Seaman of Milwaukee, was also filed. This latter report points out the overlapping of the powers of the state board of education and asked for an amendment so that those powers may be made to dovetail.

UNDERTAKER KNIFES THE VISITING NURSE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cincinnati, May 1.—The visiting nurse as a menace to undertakers business was discussed before the national convention for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis here today.

Miss Fanny F. Clements of Washington, D. C., superintendent of the Brown and County Nursing Service, told of a mining town in a western state where for eighteen months a visiting nurse worked with great success. Then, suddenly, the girl found her financial support had been withdrawn by vote of the town board. Of the three board members who cast the majority vote, one was an undertaker who frankly said he opposed the nurse because since her arrival there had been a great falling off of infant funerals. Another owned an unsanitary barn next to the school house. It had been torn down on complaint of the nurse. The third owned property not connected for sewerage as the law required.

The county sanitarium as the unit and leader in every phase of anti-tuberculosis work was urged by George J. Nelbach, assistant secretary of the State Charities Aid Association of New York. A wide awake sanitarium, employing a visiting nurse, he said, will ferret out the suspected or concealed cases. Its superintendent will hold clinics, and a system of aftercare for discharged patients will be inaugurated.
